CMS: Now for something fun—can you tell us about what one thing you enjoy doing outside of very exciting to be a part of a newly launched initiative by CMS and contribute to its growing impact.

CMS: Please tell us more about your current PhD research.

Dr. Markus Hallensleben and Elizabeth Nijdam (co-investigator), have received a SSHRC Discovery Grant from the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada to conduct research on the question of whether the provincial government and the federal government have signed the bulk of the agreements with migrant workers, including those who are part of the Temporary Foreign Worker Program (TFWP). Their research will examine how these agreements are negotiated, signed, and implemented, and what impact they have on the lives of migrant workers in Canada. Their findings will help to improve the conditions of migrant workers and promote their rights and well-being.

Dr. Gaoheng Zhang Receives Fellowships for 2022/23

Dr. Gaoheng Zhang has been awarded the Izaak Walton Killam Memorial Fund for Advanced Studies and a Jean Monnet Fellowship, based at the European University Institute. These awards will support Dr. Zhang's research on the topic of migration and integration in Europe, particularly focusing on the challenges faced by migrant workers in the European Union. His research will contribute to the understanding of migration policies and their impact on the integration of migrant workers in Europe.

CMS Feature on Dr. Dan Hiebert (IRCC)

Dr. Dan Hiebert, a former visiting scholar at the Centre for Migration Studies (CMS), has been appointed as the Director of the Immigration and Settlement Program (ISP) at the Immigration, Refugees, and Citizenship Canada (IRCC). In this position, Dr. Hiebert will lead the ISP, which is responsible for providing settlement services to newcomers to Canada, including language training, employment assistance, and cultural orientation. He will also be responsible for developing policies and strategies to support the integration of newcomers into Canadian society.

CMS Community Partner Feature: Migrant Workers Centre

The Migrant Workers Centre (MWC) has partnered with CMS to provide services to migrant workers in Canada. MWC is a non-profit organization that provides legal and employment services to migrant workers, including wage theft, non-payment of wages, and workplace discrimination. CMS and MWC have collaborated to provide resources and support to migrant workers, including workshops, seminars, and community events. The Centre for Migration Studies is excited to announce the launch of its Working Paper Series. The first paper in the series is "Doing Ethnography in the Wake of the" by Yoshimizu, Ayaka. Assistant Professor, UBC Asian Studies. This paper explores the challenges faced by researchers working with migrant workers and provides insights into the importance of understanding the intersection of multiple axes of marginalization.

"Settlement and Integration Program. My role is mainly in policy development in these areas: the learning curve that is required before a single, new person can actually make a contribution in such a mysterious system. The metaphor that arose in my mind when starting this position was that of a part of a puzzle, a piece that fits into the larger whole. My job is to ensure that each piece is in its proper place, contributing to the overall picture."

As one of those rare individuals who shaped both the world of academia and government, Papademetriou left us unexpectedly on January 26, 2022. Known to his colleagues and friends as his influence, from the highest levels of migration policymaking to the smallest, most personal gestures of affection. Papademetriou was a leader in the field of migration studies, and his contributions will be felt for many years to come.

The Centre for Migration Studies is excited to announce the launch of its Working Paper Series.

Following its approval as a formal Centre by the faculty of arts in 2020, the Centre sought further approval from the Senate to become a national research centre. This approval has been granted, and the Centre will run to the end of 2022. Here, we will share some of the insights that Dr. Markus Hallensleben and Elizabeth Nijdam (co-investigator) have received a SSHRC Discovery Grant from the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada to conduct research on the question of whether the provincial government and the federal government have signed the bulk of the agreements with migrant workers, including those who are part of the Temporary Foreign Worker Program (TFWP). Their research will examine how these agreements are negotiated, signed, and implemented, and what impact they have on the lives of migrant workers in Canada. Their findings will help to improve the conditions of migrant workers and promote their rights and well-being.

Dr. Gaoheng Zhang has been awarded the Izaak Walton Killam Memorial Fund for Advanced Studies and a Jean Monnet Fellowship, based at the European University Institute. These awards will support Dr. Zhang's research on the topic of migration and integration in Europe, particularly focusing on the challenges faced by migrant workers in the European Union. His research will contribute to the understanding of migration policies and their impact on the integration of migrant workers in Europe.

Dr. Dan Hiebert, a former visiting scholar at the Centre for Migration Studies (CMS), has been appointed as the Director of the Immigration and Settlement Program (ISP) at the Immigration, Refugees, and Citizenship Canada (IRCC). In this position, Dr. Hiebert will lead the ISP, which is responsible for providing settlement services to newcomers to Canada, including language training, employment assistance, and cultural orientation. He will also be responsible for developing policies and strategies to support the integration of newcomers into Canadian society.

The Migrant Workers Centre (MWC) has partnered with CMS to provide services to migrant workers in Canada. MWC is a non-profit organization that provides legal and employment services to migrant workers, including wage theft, non-payment of wages, and workplace discrimination. CMS and MWC have collaborated to provide resources and support to migrant workers, including workshops, seminars, and community events. The Centre for Migration Studies is excited to announce the launch of its Working Paper Series. The first paper in the series is "Doing Ethnography in the Wake of the"
by Yoshimizu, Ayaka. Assistant Professor, UBC Asian Studies. This paper explores the challenges faced by researchers working with migrant workers and provides insights into the importance of understanding the intersection of multiple axes of marginalization.

"Settlement and Integration Program. My role is mainly in policy development in these areas: the learning curve that is required before a single, new person can actually make a contribution in such a mysterious system. The metaphor that arose in my mind when starting this position was that of a part of a puzzle, a piece that fits into the larger whole. My job is to ensure that each piece is in its proper place, contributing to the overall picture."

As one of those rare individuals who shaped both the world of academia and government, Papademetriou
left us unexpectedly on January 26, 2022. Known to his colleagues and friends as his influence, from the highest levels of migration policymaking to the smallest, most personal gestures of affection. Papademetriou was a leader in the field of migration studies, and his contributions will be felt for many years to come.

The Centre for Migration Studies is excited to announce the launch of its Working Paper Series.

Following its approval as a formal Centre by the faculty of arts in 2020, the Centre sought further approval from the Senate to become a national research centre. This approval has been granted, and the Centre will run to the end of 2022. Here, we will share some of the insights that Dr. Markus Hallensleben and Elizabeth Nijdam (co-investigator) have received a SSHRC Discovery Grant from the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada to conduct research on the question of whether the provincial government and the federal government have signed the bulk of the agreements with migrant workers, including those who are part of the Temporary Foreign Worker Program (TFWP). Their research will examine how these agreements are negotiated, signed, and implemented, and what impact they have on the lives of migrant workers in Canada. Their findings will help to improve the conditions of migrant workers and promote their rights and well-being.

Dr. Gaoheng Zhang has been awarded the Izaak Walton Killam Memorial Fund for Advanced Studies and a Jean Monnet Fellowship, based at the European University Institute. These awards will support Dr. Zhang's research on the topic of migration and integration in Europe, particularly focusing on the challenges faced by migrant workers in the European Union. His research will contribute to the understanding of migration policies and their impact on the integration of migrant workers in Europe.

Dr. Dan Hiebert, a former visiting scholar at the Centre for Migration Studies (CMS), has been appointed as the Director of the Immigration and Settlement Program (ISP) at the Immigration, Refugees, and Citizenship Canada (IRCC). In this position, Dr. Hiebert will lead the ISP, which is responsible for providing settlement services to newcomers to Canada, including language training, employment assistance, and cultural orientation. He will also be responsible for developing policies and strategies to support the integration of newcomers into Canadian society.

The Migrant Workers Centre (MWC) has partnered with CMS to provide services to migrant workers in Canada. MWC is a non-profit organization that provides legal and employment services to migrant workers, including wage theft, non-payment of wages, and workplace discrimination. CMS and MWC have collaborated to provide resources and support to migrant workers, including workshops, seminars, and community events. The Centre for Migration Studies is excited to announce the launch of its Working Paper Series. The first paper in the series is "Doing Ethnography in the Wake of the"
by Yoshimizu, Ayaka. Assistant Professor, UBC Asian Studies. This paper explores the challenges faced by researchers working with migrant workers and provides insights into the importance of understanding the intersection of multiple axes of marginalization.

"Settlement and Integration Program. My role is mainly in policy development in these areas: the learning curve that is required before a single, new person can actually make a contribution in such a mysterious system. The metaphor that arose in my mind when starting this position was that of a part of a puzzle, a piece that fits into the larger whole. My job is to ensure that each piece is in its proper place, contributing to the overall picture."

As one of those rare individuals who shaped both the world of academia and government, Papademetriou
left us unexpectedly on January 26, 2022. Known to his colleagues and friends as his influence, from the highest levels of migration policymaking to the smallest, most personal gestures of affection. Papademetriou was a leader in the field of migration studies, and his contributions will be felt for many years to come.

The Centre for Migration Studies is excited to announce the launch of its Working Paper Series.